

Electrical Impedance Tomography is really tomography presented by Carlos A. Berenstein
(Univ. Maryland, College Park, USA)

EIT is actually related to "conventional" tomography, except that it has to do with the Radon transform in the hyperbolic plane.

I will discuss the approximate inversion formulas that can be derived from this fact and suggest some unexpected connections with discrete tomography.